Nomination Comments

- He is a hidden talent among the specialty doctors in his trust. He is academic medical supervisor for third-year medical students and examiner for students from Liverpool medical school. During the Covid 19 pandemic he has published and used remote consultation strategies and teaching methods to help and continue to deliver teaching and training to undergraduate and postgraduates.
- His teaching style always manages to keep the students focused and interested in a difficult subject. He is extremely organised with handouts, quizzes and powerpoint lectures.
- He has designed and implemented a training programme for medical students which continue to expose them to palliative care - includes exposure and practice of advanced communication skills, which at times have not been able to be delivered face to face. Undaunted, he developed a televisual programme, including real time interaction with actors which helped develop similar skills to face to face sessions.
- His feedback from the students has been exemplary and he has consistently received the best feedback from all university clinical placements.

Nomination Comments

- He finally got CESR in August 2020 due to his own sheer determination and hard work. Since then, he has been instrumental in helping others try and get CESR.
- He is actively involved in the WhatsApp group on CESR always encouraging others to apply. He has also spoken at various forums, sharing his CESR journey about 'how to get CESR' and encouraged SAS doctors to apply.
- As CESR lead, I am very impressed with his hard work, dedication and resilience. CESR is a tough task especially during busy Emergency Medicine job, but he followed GMC SSG guidelines and guidance from the CESR lead. He is an inspiration for other SAS doctors in Emergency Medicine.
- Been successful in getting CESR within the span of two years. This was down to his commitment and resolve to work hard and not stopping without achieving the goal.
- Having achieved this feat he is now very actively coaching supporting and encouraging SAS doctors to commit themselves to achieve CESR. He's doing this by supporting these doctors as a CESR champion, making time for one-to-one meetings and taking part in CESR workshops.

Nomination Comments

- The first SAS doctor to be appointed as an SAS tutor at his Trust. Despite being a small trust with less number of SAS doctors, he utilised and networked with tutors in the region and created opportunities for them attend courses in neighbouring trusts.
- Also created opportunity for SAS doctors to apply for CEA points and 3 SAS doctors got the award. Other achievements have been creation of leadership roles, educational supervisors and supporting IMG & LEDs stranded in UK.
- Established SAS Doctor aspirational interviews to look at a personalised development plan for each individual doctor so that they maximise their individual potential and have a more fulfilling work life experience. Established an MMED with bespoke SAS support with protected time in job plans that is designed for SAS doctors.
- Developed the pastoral role of the SAS Tutor, maintaining resilience and prioritising the wellbeing of SAS Doctors during the pandemic period. Skilfully advocated the issues raised on behalf of SAS Doctors. She supported Doctors shielding, those adapting to remote working and juggling home-schooling.

SAS Lifetime Achievement Award

This award is for SAS doctors and dentists who have demonstrated excellence in their professional life over many years. This may be in patient care, development of clinical services, educational roles and/ or research.

Nomination Comments

- An excellent clinician and teacher who has been instrumental in the training of nearly all renal trainees throughout her years at X Hospital, helping us to attain the key clinical skill of dialysis line insertion. Her patience, clear guidance and excellent instruction has been key in helping all trainees acquire this key skill and manage difficult cases to aid patient care. Being signed off by her has always been a right of passage for any renal trainee in the region and we will always be grateful for her help.
